The pressure tank is composed of high-performance composite materials and glass fiber reinforced winding wires

All pressure tanks are made using integral seamless molding technology:

According to the different diameters of the barrel, the wall thickness of the barrel varies from 3.0-8.0MM:

The entire series of pressure tanks can be made in the form of upper or lower openings;

The weight of pressure tanks made of reinforced composite materials is only one-third of the weight of steel tanks;

All pressure tanks are 100% rust and corrosion resistant;

The base accessories of structural science are impact resistant, wear-resistant, and provide better performance:
